Gaëlane, Big Wave International Talent

I chose to study drama as an optional subject at school, which I really enjoyed for six years. I also acted in two short movies as well as assisting in drawing the storyboard for another short movie.

In both of these short movies, I had the leading role.

- The first one was called "Empty House", directed and produced by Vincent Chabrilat in 2005, in which I appear as the memory of Suzanne as a child, when her elder self is revisiting her childhood home.
- The second short movie is "Gizmo_girl2089", also by Vincent Chabrilat, which came out in 2006. It is a movie about the place that new technologies are taking in our lives.

Acting in these short movies gave me an insight into the acting profession. I learnt how to be patient since you often have to shoot a scene several times before it is "perfect". I also developed my perseverance since you always have to improve your performance. Finally, I learnt to question myself. These qualities also helped me a lot during my drama lessons and I find them really useful in my personal and professional life as well.
